Sparrow moves in, Tommy is grounded

by Adoree Shortle

Tommy Haas isn't going to be able to ride his motorcycle all summer just because a little brown sparrow decided that his helmet was a good place to build a nest.

Tommy is happy to be a surrogate father and landlord for a family of five, but he is sort of nonplussed about losing his transportation.

It all started one Saturday evening a few weeks ago when 10-year-old Tommy, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joe Haas of Kiln, parked his motorcycle in the carport and hung his helmet on the handle bar.

The next morning he went out to ride the bike, but came back in the house and told his mother, "You won't believe this, but a bird is building a nest in my helmet."

And so she was. The whole Haas family lined up to watch the little sparrow, busily flying back and forth with straw and grass and totally unconcerned with the group of spectators.

The next day, her nest complete, she laid a tiny egg. Every day she laid another and by the next Sunday, there were five eggs and she settled down to the business of hatching. Tommy resigned himself to being grounded.

The constant family traffic in the carport didn't bother the little sparrow one whit, any more than the family's St. Bernard puppy (who is bigger than the motorcycle).

The family learned a lot about wild birds and nesting mothers, especially Tommy who had a lot of time to observe since he couldn't go anywhere.

Joe Haas, who is a Taca Airlines pilot, said the sparrow sat on the nest all night but was gone most of the day between 10 a.m. and 5.

Last Sunday, the eggs hatched and Tommy found himself the substitute father of five minuscule birds. One died but the other four are doing nicely... and Tommy is still watching and waiting.

You can bet he'll be prouder than the sparrow mother when the four fledglings are ready to leave the nest — and he gets his motorcycle back. Maybe he can ask his Dad to give them a few pointers in flying for a pre-scheduled take off.

Hancock residents to be without ambulance service after August 1

Mobile Medic Ambulance Service president Doug Burgin told Waveland aldermen Wednesday night Hancock County residents face a complete loss of ambulance service Aug. 1 unless membership subscriptions pick up drastically over the next three weeks.

Burgin saying that he wished to give a progress report of the private firm's drive to subscribe members to its ambulance service, told aldermen that currently the firm was getting less membership support from Hancock County than from Harrison County.

"I feel we must do something to convince the people of this county that they will have no ambulance service after Aug. 1," Burgin said.

Riemann and Lang Funeral Homes have announced their intentions to discontinue ambulance service to their patrons effective the August date.

Burgin asked Mayor John Longo and aldermen for any aid or leadership they could give to stimulate people to join the service by July 15. The aldermen have previously endorsed the service.

In other business the council voted to enter into a joint computer service with the city of Bay St. Louis and the county to handle the land tax rolls of the three entities.

City clerk Barbara Rappold told aldermen that first year cost of the proposed service would come to $1,500 for Waveland or 10 percent of the total $15,000 cost. Thereafter, she said, cost would be 12 cents per parcel of land, or approximately $700 per year. The city has approximately 5,500 parcels of land presently on its tax rolls.

The council also approved payment of $93,645 to Wallace Industrial Contractors, Inc., Pascagoula, as fourth partial payment for work done on the sewer treatment facility and denied payment of $46,772.14 to Byrd & Wilcon.

Inc. for progress payment no. 15 on the sewer collection system after attorney Lucien Gex said that deficiencies and liquidated damages were in excess of the invoice. Gex said liquidated damages and deficiencies totalled $70,560.

In other matters the council:

- approved a report listing total funds on hand as $680,379.11.
- passed a motion to purchase a new mattress for the city fire department from A-1 Home Center, Gulfport.
- look under advisement a request for a privilege license from Direct Advertising Company, Kaufman, Texas, to locate and operate from the Ramada Inn Motel. The firm stated it intended to deal in commercial advertising sales with merchants and the public.

Emergency depicted

A 12 minute film entitled "Cry for Help" which depicts an emergency medical service team in action will be shown Tuesday July 2 at 7 p.m. at the Bay High School Auditorium in Bay St. Louis.

Mobile Medic Ambulance Service, Gulfport, which is making the film showing available to facilitate understanding of the para-medical team operation of saving life, will also have a modular ambulance similar to one depicted in the film on display.

Pollution tests point finger at city's animal population

by Dan Barber

Water samples taken at major drainage areas and recreation points within the city limits of Bay St. Louis reveal that pollution problems within this city may be more animal than human related.

According to Public Utilities Commissioner Lucien Kidd water samples collected and tested by Environmental Engineers, a Gulfport lab, show that pollution in the area is mixed, but primarily of animal origin.

Kidd said tests taken at Bay View Court, Ballentine, and Ramoneda Street beach areas during June, as well as Sycamore and Washington Street drains, showed significantly higher counts of fecal streptococcus over fecal coliform counts. A ratio between the two bacteria is used to determine the relative presence of animal wastes to human wastes.

Kidd said results of the independent lab's tests, which were conducted in water 15 feet from the beach, had been forwarded to James Carroway, Air and Water Pollution Control Commissioner.

The tests were a continuation of the city's efforts to locate sources of pollution in the beach areas and follows attempts in recent weeks by the Mississippi State Board of Health to have cities along the Mississippi Coast post pollution hazard signs.

Tests taken by the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission were used by the board of health to declare that water in the Mississippi Sound were unsuitable for swimming or water contact recreation because of high bacteria counts resulting from lack of adequate pollution controls.

Kidd said that the city did not intend to conduct any more tests until such time as word had been received back from the state health board.

A recent ruling by the state attorney general's office advised the board of health that the body had no legal authority to force coast municipalities to post the hazard signs.

Supervisors in both Hancock and Harrison Counties had refused to act on a strong suggestion by the Board of Health to post the signs, declaring that tests taken by the Air and Water Pollution Control Commission were inadequate to form an overall condemnation of the coastal area's biggest tourist attraction.

GED tests given

Reminder is issued from Al Bourgeois, counselor at the Hancock County Vo-Tech Center at Stennis Field, that applications for taking the GED tests for high school equivalency will be accepted through today. Applicants interested in taking the test can apply to Mr. Bourgeois at the school. Tests will start 6 p.m. Friday night at the Vo-Tech Center.

Borg-Warner granted option on land purchase

An option for 200 acres of land in the Port Bienville industrial park which could bring a $50 million plant to Hancock County was granted to the Borg-Warner Corp. at a Wednesday morning meeting of the county board of supervisors.

Culminating weeks of negotiations with the company, the county board ratified by unanimous motion a Port and Harbor Commission resolution to grant Borg-Warner a 90-day option for the sum of $12,500 for the 200 acres with an agreement for a second 90-day option to follow the first.

Appearing at the meeting were three representatives of the company from the Parkersburg, West Va. plant.

Robert Norman, facilities-planning manager, Gary Hausman, facilities-planning engineer and James Lidman, corporation attorney from Chicago, told the supervisors that the company plans to establish a petrochemical plant on the site which would cost upwards of $50 million. The plant, which would manufacture a high impact, high gloss moldable plastic, would have a potential work force of 500 to 600 within two to four years, Norman stated.

The plastic is made from by-products of a petroleum distilling process and is used in making telephones and communications equipment, automotive parts, furniture, cabinets and a multiplicity of products.

Pier to be dedicated to late Mayor Ladner

by Dan Barber

A small jetty of riprap transformed into a paved promenade extending into the Gulf waters at the foot of Terrace Ave. in Waveland will be given the name of the late mayor Garfield Ladner by a unanimous vote of the Waveland Board of Aldermen, Wednesday night.

Dedication and ribbon cutting ceremonies for the Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier will be conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday June 29, with Mrs. Lottie Ladner, widow of the mayor, doing the ribbon cutting.

Ladner, for whom the pier will be named, was in his 32nd year as mayor when he died late last year following a lengthy illness.

Longo, a close friend of the late mayor, said he thought the project was something that would have made the late mayor proud.

The dedication ceremonies will mark the end of almost two months of work by the city of Waveland and Hancock County supervisors to turn the unsightly remains of the destruction of two hurricanes, Betsy in 1965 and Camille in 1969, into something useful and attractive to the citizenry of the town.

The site had been the collection point for broken concrete and slabs of seawall removed by clean-up workers from the U.S. Corps of Engineers following the two hurricanes destruction.

Rodeo set

The Hancock County Fair and Livestock Association in Bay St. Louis has announced the upcoming annual Rodeo, scheduled for July 5-6 at the County Fairgrounds in Bay St. Louis.

The event which annually draws thousands of spectators will be held at the County Fairgrounds on Old Kiln Road in Bay St. Louis. Local contestants will be eligible to enter this year, along with professional riders who tour the rodeo circuit competing for cash prizes and trophies.

On the lineup of events this year are bull riding, saddle bronc, calf roping, steer wrestling, bareback bronc riding and barrel racing. Registration opens Tuesday, July 2 at either the fairgrounds or the Ramada Inn. Rodeo activity begins each night at 8:30 p.m.

Highlighting the entertainment each evening will be two specialty acts as well as the traditional clowns.

Paul Milam, Rodeo ticket chairman, has announced that advance ticket prices are $2 for adults and $1 for children; tickets at the gate will be $2.50 and $1.25.

Senators demand clarification of GAO decision

Senator John C. Stennis yesterday demanded clarification of the General Accounting Office's decision on the space shuttle solid rocket motor contract. Before any further congressional action is taken by NASA.

In a lengthy letter to Mr. Elmer Staats, comptroller general, Stennis and Sen. Russell Long (D-La.) said the decision Monday was "not fully responsive to specific questions they had asked."

Stennis said the decision "does not answer the question of whether the contract is a 'minimum' or a 'maximum' contract."

Senators said, "we are not prepared to permit the cost effectiveness of facilities in Mississippi and Louisiana to be determined by an estimate of inflation made by a contractor from another state."

Furthermore, they stressed to Staats that "unless your decision is clarified and the statements made by your representatives corrected, we will be left with this national result."

Upon immediate attention to this matter, the senators said, "we will be able to proceed as to further action."

Senators delivered a copy of the letter to Dr. James Fletcher, administrator of NASA, and requested that he "delay any further action until the Comptroller had responded to this letter in a substantial way and we have had a chance to discuss these issues with you."

The decision made by GAO last Monday estimated the cost of the shuttle program at $4.4 billion. NASA contended that the program would cost $4.4 billion, but the GAO estimated it would cost $4.4 billion less.

government owned facilities in Mississippi and Louisiana.

With these findings by the GAO, the cost difference between the two proposals may range from $48 million to $50 million, Stennis said.

Specifically, the key issue that was not dealt with by the GAO was the "comparative estimates of escalation," or how much the cost of the program will increase due to inflation and other economic factors, according to Stennis.

Stennis said the GAO had not determined how much of each proposal's estimate of escalation should be applied equally to the two bidders. The different estimates of escalation total approximately $30 million in cost.

"Because the $30 million difference in escalation exceeds the $48 million overall difference between the proposals," the letter said, "we believe that it is essential that you... require NASA to deal with the crucial implication of the escalation issue."

In the strongly worded letter, the senators listed as a "minimum" requirement, a clarification of the ruling by the GAO that the cost difference "is $48-63 million minus the portion of the $30 million in escalation that should have been normalized."

Normalized is a term used by NASA for costs that should be applied equally to both proposals, Stennis explained.

"As long as the escalation issue is unresolved," the letter continues, "the question of 'who is the low bidder is unanswered.' Zeroing in on the issue"

The past weekend was ideal for fishing, no rain, low tides in the afternoons. The weather was on the hot side but breezes helped to cool things a little. Bass and perch were hitting late in the evening and were being caught from 5 p.m. on up until dark.

Such places as Deer Bayou, Fawn Bayou and Buck's Bayou furnished some good fly rod and casting fishing.

As for salt water fish, understand that speckles were again caught on the highway bridge, American Legion Pier and down by Bayou Caddy along with hard crabs. Things are looking better as the summer progresses.

A lot of soft crabs have been out at night with very little results. Still have hopes that they will get better later.

Two young boys were skiing the other day. They were picked up and had to pay a fine for not observing rules concerning skiing. One rule is that when skiing there must be a pilot and one observer in the boat, plus the one on skis. Skiing is a popular sport hereabout so let's learn something about it.

Sorry to learn that Vic Schwartz has been hospitalized. His fishing buddies will miss him. Get well soon, Vic.

Bud Thomas has returned from the hospital after a short stay. Doing o.k. he said.

Another fish kill appeared in Calcasieu river last week-officials are trying to find out why.

Fish of all species started dying in large numbers and their bodies littered sandbars and the river bank.

Darrell Reed of the state Wild Life and Fisheries Commission said Thursday there was "zero oxygen" in that stretch of the river.

Jim Wrinkle, a river pump operator, said he has seen dozens of fish "coming up with their mouths open, gasping for air" before dying and floating to the surface.

A crew of commission officials has been inspecting the river near Kinder and Oberlin since Tuesday seeking the cause of the fish kill and taking water samples for chemical analysis.

Reed said legal action was possible if the analysis shows that industrial pollution caused the fish kill.

We have had several fish kills here and at Pearl River. They have been investigated. The Fish and Game Commission is doing all in its power to find a solution.

J. Burton Angelle, director of the Louisiana Wild Life and Fisheries Commission, reminds all interested Louisiana hunters and sportsmen that the annual public hearings on the setting of hunting seasons and bag limits for 1974-75 will be June 21 and 22 at the Ramada Inn in Alexandria, La.

The hearings will begin immediately after the regular monthly public meeting of the Commission which is scheduled to start at 10 a.m. Friday at the Ramada Inn. Angelle urged all interested parties to make plans to attend.

You, as a hunter in La. or Miss. can help a lot by giving some new ideas on setting seasons and bag limits for the coming year.

Senior Game Warden Pat Toomey notified us that the new ramp being built at the end of the seawall down Cedar Point way is not completed and is not to be used as yet. The ramp is being built by the Miss. Game and Fish Commission for public use. Pat will give notice when it is to be used. The public should take notice.

While speaking of Pat Toomey he is also a real sport. Fishes, hunts, etc. like all of us. He speared 11 flounders at the mouth of Pearl River down by the Port and Harbor project. They were all nice size, he said.

Glad to know that Dick F. Mestayer, III has received his

M.D. degree. Dick, besides being a doctor is one of our best fishermen. He is the oldest son of Dick Mestayer, II. He takes behind his Pa when it comes to being a fisherman.

Was sorry to hear of the death of Nolan Kingston Sunday afternoon. He was one of our best sports. Sympathy is extended to his family.

Luke Elliott and Ray Garner made a nice catch of bass and perch Saturday in Buck's Bayou. The fish were caught late in the evening after the tide fell. They were caught on the fly rod and by casting. Buck's Bayou and other bayous in that section are clear now. They are tributaries of the mighty Pearl River which is clearing rapidly. Good fresh water fishing will be following shortly.

John Scatide, Sr. and Jr. reported catching some nice speckles at Nine Bayou out in the marsh, also caught a nice bunch of shrimp in that area. The two Johns make a good father and son fishing combination. They were on John, Jr.'s boat.

Roy Baxter's Pearlinton Marina is getting ready for another good fishing season as soon as the river gets clearer. This is the area to fish in for fresh water fish and salt water fish. Roy's Marina is the place to launch your boat or rent one. Go meet Roy, you will be glad you did, fishing wise.

We keep talking about skiing and so are the folks who run fishing camps. Skiing is a lot of fun but it's a pain to a lot of fishermen who fear for their lives when high speed boats venture too near them. Be a good sport when skiing—respect others. They enjoy the waters too. Keep your boat under control at all times. Know what you are doing. That's a smart skier.

Did you fishermen know that when the air is humid, rain is more likely at low than high tide? Falling tide reduces atmospheric pressure.

The fresh water Drum (Gaspargon) average weight is about six pounds, but grows as big as 60 pounds. It is valuable as a commercial fish for food. Of course there are salt water drum too.

Free-ranging dogs harmful to wildlife

MISSISSIPPI STATE — Dogs can bring many hours of pleasure to their owners. However, free-ranging dogs can be very destructive to wildlife.

"Most dog owners cannot imagine their pets as killers of wildlife, but many cases have been studied that substantiate this fact," noted Ross Shelton, wildlife specialist for the Co-operative Extension Service. "Dogs can be very harmful to nesting turkeys. They can destroy nests or cause nest abandonment."

In the spring and summer, dogs have been known to run deer down and kill them.

Even though job opportunities in all fields are expanding rapidly for women, women are not entering the traditionally male occupations. The U.S. Department of Labor reports that only 7 percent of June 1972 women graduates majored in math, science, or engineering as compared with 24 percent of the men. Almost 50 percent of the women majored in education, but only 11 percent of the men majored in education. However, a larger portion of men than women in education have completed five or more years of college.

WOMEN The real income of all workers has increased over the last two decades; however, the most educated workers have experienced the greatest increase. Since 1949, the median income of men

The rept attention of small children is reflected every week during the city-county library's summer reading program for children three to five years old. Here Mrs. Nancy Ginn, Bay-Waveland Junior Auxiliary member, reads a Dr. Seuss book, a children's favorite. The Junior-Auxiliary in cooperation with the library is acting as volunteer story tellers every Friday from 10:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. during the summer program. Mrs. Watson Prindville, administrator of the library, said the program is important because children learn to be comfortable with books at an early age and establish habits of library usage.

Hancock residents to be without ambulance service after August 1

Mobile Medic Ambulance Service president Doug Burgin told Waveland aldermen Wednesday night Hancock County residents face a complete loss of ambulance service Aug. 1 unless membership subscriptions pick up drastically over the next three weeks.

City clerk Barbara Rappold told aldermen that first year cost of the pro rated service would come to $1,500 for Waveland or 10 percent of the total $15,000 cost. Thereafter, she said, cost would be 12 cents per parcel of land, or approximately $700 per year. The city has approximately 5,500 parcels of land presently on its tax rolls.

The council also approved payment of $93,645 to Wallace Industrial Contractors, Inc., Pascagoula, as fourth partial payment for work done on the sewer treatment facility and denied payment of $46,772.14 to Byrd & Wilcon.

Inc. for progress payment no. 15 on the sewer collection system after attorney Lucien Gex said that deficiencies and liquidated damages were in excess of the invoice. Gex said liquidated damages and deficiencies totaled $70,560.

In other matters the council:

- approved a report listing total funds on hand as $660,379.11.
- passed a motion to purchase a new mattress for the city fire department from A-1 Home Center, Gulfport.
- look under advisement a request for a privilege license from Direct Advertising Company, Kaufman, Texas, to locate and operate from the Ramada Inn Motel. The firm stated it intended to deal in commercial advertising sales with merchants and the public.

Pollution tests point finger at city's animal population

by Dan Barber

Water samples taken at major drainage areas and recreation points within the city limits of Bay St. Louis reveal that pollution problems within this city may be more animal than human related.

According to Public Utilities Commissioner Lucien Kidd water samples collected and tested by Environmental Engineers, a Gulfport lab, show that pollution in the area is mixed, but primarily of animal origin.

Kidd said tests taken at Bay View Court, Ballentine, and Ramoneda Street beach areas during June, as well as Sycamore and Washington Street drains, showed significantly higher counts of fecal streptococcus over fecal coliform counts. A ratio between the two bacteria is used to determine the relative presence of animal wastes to human wastes.

Kidd said results of the independent lab's tests, which were conducted in water 15 feet from the beach, had been forwarded to James Carroway, Air and Water Pollution Control Commissioner.

The tests were a continuation of the city's efforts to locate sources of pollution in the beach areas and follows attempts in recent weeks by the Mississippi State Board of Health to have cities along the Mississippi Coast post pollution hazard signs.

Tests taken by the Mississippi Air and Water Pollution Control Commission were used by the board of health to declare that water in the Mississippi Sound were unsuitable for swimming or water contact recreation because of high bacteria counts resulting from lack of adequate pollution controls.

Kidd said that the city did not intend to conduct any more tests until such time as word had been received back from the state health board.

A recent ruling by the state attorney general's office advised the board of health that the body had no legal authority to force coast municipalities to post the hazard signs.

Supervisors in both Hancock and Harrison Counties had refused to act on a strong suggestion by the Board of Health to post the signs, declaring that tests taken by the Air and Water Pollution Control Commission were inadequate to form an overall condemnation of the coastal area's biggest tourist attraction.

GED tests given

Reminder is issued from Al Bourgeois, counselor at the Hancock County Vo-Tech Center at Stennis Field, that applications for taking the GED tests for high school equivalency will be accepted through today. Applicants interested in taking the test can apply to Mr. Bourgeois at the school. Tests will start 6 p.m. Friday night at the Vo-Tech Center.

Borg-Warner granted option on land purchase

An option for 200 acres of land in the Port Bienville industrial park which could bring a $50 million plant to Hancock County was granted to the Borg-Warner Corp. at a Wednesday morning meeting of the county board of supervisors.

Culminating weeks of negotiations with the company, the county board ratified by unanimous motion a Port and Harbor Commission resolution to grant Borg-Warner a 90-day option for the sum of $12,500 for the 200 acres with an agreement for a second 90-day option to follow the first.

Appearing at the meeting were three representatives of the company from the Parkersburg, West Va. plant.

Robert Norman, facilities-planning manager, Gary Hausman, facilities-planning engineer and James Lidman, corporation attorney from Chicago, told the supervisors that the company plans to establish a petrochemical plant on the site which would cost upwards of $50 million. The plant, which would manufacture a high impact, high gloss moldable plastic, would have a potential work force of 500 to 600 within two to four years, Norman stated.

The plastic is made from by-products of a petroleum distilling process and is used in making telephones and communications equipment, automotive parts, furniture, cabinets and a multiplicity of products.

Pier to be dedicated to late Mayor Ladner

by Dan Barber

A small jetty of riprap transformed into a paved promenade extending into the Gulf waters at the foot of Terrace Ave. in Waveland will be given the name of the late mayor Garfield Ladner by a unanimous vote of the Waveland Board of Aldermen Wednesday night.

Dedication and ribbon cutting ceremonies for the Garfield Ladner Memorial Pier will be conducted at 10 a.m. Saturday June 29, with Mrs. Lottie Ladner, widow of the mayor, doing the ribbon cutting.

The dedication ceremonies will mark the end of almost two months of work by the city of Waveland and Hancock County supervisors to turn the unsightly remains of the destruction of two hurricanes, Betsy in 1965 and Camille in 1969, into something useful and attractive to the citizenry of the town.

The site had been the collection point for broken concrete and slabs of seawall removed by clean-up workers from the U.S. Corps of Engineers following the two hurricanes destruction.

Due to the efforts of Waveland Mayor John Longo, help was obtained from the Hancock Supervisors and Mestayer Lumber Co. to rehabilitate the rock pile into a combination pier and launching ramp.

Jagged rock has been capped with concrete, a roadway has been graded and blacktopped, and a turn-around bay created at the end of the pier.

Ladner, for whom the pier will be named, was in his 32nd year as mayor when he died late last year following a lengthy illness.

Longo, a close friend of the late mayor, said he thought the project was something that would have made the late mayor proud.

Senators demand clarification of GAO decision

Senator John C. Stennis yesterday took steps to seek clarification of the General Accounting Office's decision on the space shuttle solid rocket motor contract before "any further contractual action" is taken by NASA.

In a lengthy letter to Mr. Elmer Staats, comptroller general, Stennis and Sen. Russell Long (D-La.) said the decision last Monday was "not fully responsive" to specific questions they had raised as early as last November.

Waiting the letter on the basis of the decision, Stennis and Long said, was "a question of clarification of the GAO's decision."

Senators said, "we are not prepared to permit the cost effectiveness of facilities in Mississippi and Alabama to be determined by an estimate of inflation made by a contractor from another state."

Furthermore, they stressed to Staats that "unless your decision is clarified and the estimates made by your representatives corrected, we will be left with this irrational result."

Stennis immediately attention to this matter, and a response as to whether the decision is clarified or not.

Senators delivered a copy of the letter to Dr. James Fletcher, administrator of NASA, and requested that he "delay any further action until the Comptroller had responded to our letter in a substantive way and we have had a chance to discuss these issues with you."

The decision by the GAO last Monday pining the contract made by NASA in evaluating the bid totaling $74 million. In its original decision NASA contended that the proposal to build the rocket engine would cost $122 million lower than the proposal which would use government owned facilities in Mississippi and Louisiana.

With these findings by the GAO, the cost differences between the two proposals may range from $48 million to $122 million, Stennis said.

Specifically, the key issue that was not dealt with by the GAO was the "comparative estimates of escalation," or how much the cost of the program will increase due to inflation and other economic factors, according to Stennis.

In the strongly worded letter, the senators listed as a "major concern" that the GAO had not determined how much of each proposal's estimate of escalation should be applied equally to the two bidders. The different estimates of escalation total approximately $60 million in cost.

"Because the $60 million difference in escalation exceeds the $48 million overall difference between the proposals," the letter said, "we believe that it is essential that you... require NASA to deal with the crucial implication of the escalation issue."

In the strongly worded letter, the senators listed as a "major concern" that the GAO had not determined requirement, a clarification of the ruling by the GAO that the cost difference "is $48-63 million minus the portion of the $60 million in escalation that should have been normalized."

Normalized is a term used by NASA to mean that the cost of the program should be applied equally to both proposals, Stennis explained.

"As long as the escalation is unresolved, the cost of the program will be a question of who gets the most of the $60 million difference," Stennis said.

The Story of Parchman Prison farm or political prey?

This is the second in an in-depth series on the controversial Mississippi state penitentiary at Parchman - a documentary of its past, present and future.

by Adoree Shortle
Echo News Editor

December 1973 will probably go down in the annals of the state as the most significant and explosive period in the 69 year history of the state prison farm at Parchman.

Jack Reed arrived at Parchman suddenly, unexpectedly and two weeks ahead of time. Due Jan. 1, he turned up Dec. 17.

Approved by the federal court and appointed superintendent by the governor, Reed came from California with 11 years of training and experience in penal systems and corrections.

In a very few days it became apparent to the entire institution - inmates and employees alike - that Reed was someone to be reckoned with. He went through the prison farm like Sherman through Georgia. Depending on the disposition and past conduct of the individual, he either inspired a feeling of confidence or caused massive waves of consternation.

Long time inmates and employees were used to coping with new superintendents. Reed was the fifth in eight years, four of whom had served in the past two years.

A former Marine, he had been trained in the California Dept. of Corrections and had been an instructor in Introduction to Probation and Parole at Delta College in Stockton, Calif. He had worked as a parole agent with California correctional institutions in psychiatric rehabilitation of prisoners and, most significantly, had studied transactional analysis under the late eminent psychiatrist, Dr. Eric Berne. Shortly before coming to Mississippi, he had been sent as a delegate from the United States to the United Nations Corrections Council conferences in Stockholm and in Japan.

At Parchman, what set him apart most of all was the fact that he was an outsider...a rank alien who was not a native Mississippian, was not related to anyone and had no connections of any kind with anyone.

Candid and outspoken, Reed has a disconcerting habit of saying exactly what he thinks. He has also a quick and analytical mind and within the first three weeks after his arrival at Parchman, he had formed a most accurate evaluation of the political situation governing the prison farm. Of course, after 11 years of dealing with criminal minds and instincts, he had a decided edge.

In short, he quickly realized that the inmates were the least of the problems at Parchman. But to him, they were the most important factor to be considered.

HOUSE CLEANING

He went on a whirlwind inspection tour of the installation which revealed some startling facts.

Within the first two months, he fired five employees for dishonesty, suspended a security guard for abusing prisoners, wiped out the comptroller and sent his predecessor, W. T. Hollowell, packing.

He turned up discrepancies in inmates' records, which was both good and bad depending on the nature of the discrepancy, and irritated those reporters and legislators who tried to look over his shoulder.

He caused enough upheaval to prompt Governor Waller to say that "Jack Reed should take a Dale Carnegie course in making friends and influencing people". Still, despite Reed's sometimes abruptness with people, the governor staunchly supported him.

And it was well that he did. Because when the inevitable overtures for corruption were made, Reed kept his counsel but didn't join the game. In so doing, he made some bitter political enemies.

His revolutionary methods at Parchman and his unexpected inclination for honesty started shock waves which reached to Jackson.

However, Reed's arrival at Parchman can not be attributed as the total reason for the revolution. The rumblings started almost a year before when civil rights lawyers' efforts on behalf of inmates had precipitated investigations and resultant orders by federal court judges.

CAUSE CELEBRE

When the legislature convened in January, 1974, the penal farm became the cause celebre. Controversy erupted among legislators as solons divided into two camps, turning the House and the Senate into a battleground.

The faction, primarily in the Senate, which did not want any changes made, wanted to retain full power with the penitentiary board and to keep the governor out of it, was opposed by an equally strong group in the House fortified by a couple of effective senators who were determined to break the historic strangle hold that was destroying the institution.

Senator Corbet Patridge of Schlater, 18 years in office and one of the most influential legislators in prison affairs, led the field and wrote a ponderous 30-page reform bill. The most vociferous exponent of board power and instant enemy of Reed, Patridge was joined by a group of colleagues whose didactics in the power struggle set the pace for the remainder of the session.

Earlier in the game before the legislature convened, Patridge had written letters to the prison board describing Parchman as a "heinous penitentiary that now exists below levels of human decency". Also in the letters, which were marked strictly confidential, the veteran senator had blasted Gov. Waller as a "do-nothing who has made the penitentiary a political football".

Patridge used strong language in decrying conditions at the prison and in vituperative criticism of the governor, supervisors past and present, board members and some legislators for "submissive peon roles" of satisfying the whims of the governor.

He stood loudly for penal reform, he said, but adversely in his bill he gave full power of administration of the prison to the board with absolute power to hire and fire superintendents, and most surprisingly, wrote in use of the infamous lash, which the federal courts had ruled illegal and unconstitutional.

In Jackson conferring with legislators in prison matters, Reed requested deletion of the bullwhip but it nevertheless remained.

Along with a preponderance of other bills, the prison bill went back and forth from the House to the Senate, went in and out of committee and precipitated an exhausting number of meetings, haggling and angry discussions.

COMMITTEE TOUR

At the end of March, the House penitentiary committee went to Parchman for an exhaustive two-day investigation of the institution in an effort to determine exactly what needed to be done, legislatively.

In the party were Representatives O. B. Bennett of Sunflower Co., Bunky Huggins of Greenwood, Bill Guy of Pike Co., Robert Anderson of Copiah Co., Thomas McCarty of Columbus, Earl "Buck" Ladner of Hancock Co., Mark Chaney of Vicksburg and Jim Simpson of Harrison Co. Also staying with the group was Sen. James Molpus of Clarksdale, a member of the Senate penitentiary committee.

Starting early in the morning and working late into the night, the group of men covered virtually every inch of the prison and farm grounds, toured every camp, talked to prisoners and held lengthy conferences with Reed and his top staff members.

In a climatic session, which this reporter sat through at chairman Anderson's request, the committee spent five hours in non-stop individual interviews with most of the camp sergeants, with Bobby Horton, superintendent of the farm for the state Extension Service, and other administrative or supervisory personnel.

At 1:30 in the morning, the group staggered out of the meeting room, exhausted but armed with a wealth of facts and a clearer picture of what needed to be done about Parchman.

TIDE TURNED

Back in Jackson the next week, the battle took a drastic turn.

The revised bill, adopted on the very last day of the session, was signed by the governor and described by Lt. Gov. William Winter thusly:

"After a great deal of debate and study, the Legislature enacted a major penal reform bill in the final days of the 1974 session. While there are no simple solutions to the persistent controversy which has surrounded the state correctional institution at Parchman, I believe a significant step forward was made with the passage of this bill.

"The real dilemma of Parchman, in my opinion, lies in striking a balance between the necessity of protecting the people of Mississippi from lawbreakers and the equally important goal of providing a correctional institution where living conditions are humane and the prisoner is rehabilitated in such a way that he can re-enter society as a productive and law-abiding citizen.

"The penitentiary bill achieves several desirable goals. To attract a topflight penal administrator, the bill provides for a higher-salaried

Rail car work begun

Work on nine railway cars was begun by the J. L. Fabricating Company this week at Jackson Landing Shipyard in what principals hope will be an expanding enterprise.

The firm, which is contracted out to make repairs and perform general rehabilitation work on the railroad cars hopes eventually to receive 40 cars a month from rail lines serving the southern states.

The nine cars that the firm is putting in order now are of the hopper type.

A spokesman for the firm said that workers were involved in sand blasting, painting and restenciling cars as well as spot welding operations on others.

The firm also does general and specialized steel fabrication for the shipyard.

Cash taken in two Bay robberies

Two Bay St. Louis businesses were reported robbed of sums of cash this week, according to Bay police department reports.

Sunday night about 11:15 p.m., Mickey Reid, manager of the Majik Mart on Dunbar Ave., told police Chief William Carbonette that about $76 had been taken from the cash register in the store.

Monday night about the same time, the door of Horne's

Restaurant on Highway 90

was discovered open after the restaurant had been closed for the night. Bay police, with restaurant manager Mrs. Inez Smith made a thorough search of the premises, Chief Carbonette said, and found nothing missing. Tuesday morning about 7 a.m., Mrs. Smith reported about $85 missing from a petty cash fund in a desk. Police are investigating both incidents.

Beach front property owners fight Waveland condominiums

by Dan Barber

A decision to prohibit or allow rezoning of approximately six acres of beachfront property on the western edge of the city of Waveland was tabled for 15 days Tuesday night after aldermen listened to nearly two hours of opposing arguments in the matter.

The motion to delay final decision on the rezoning question was agreed to by aldermen on the written request of Joseph Benvenuti, attorney for the Bay-Waveland Beachfront Property Owners Association. Benvenuti had further requested that the hearing be postponed for two weeks due to personal illness but that request was denied on the advice of Waveland attorney Lucien Gex Jr. who said that the request was received too late to reschedule the hearing.

The issue on which the public hearing was called centers on the efforts of Floyd Wallis, a New Orleans business man, to have 1000 feet of property owned by him rezoned to R-3, or multiple family residential, to allow the construction of condominiums on the property.

The property, which fronts Beach Boulevard is 200 feet wide and 1200 feet deep, but Wallis is not asking for a zoning change for the first 200 foot depth.

Opponents to the Wallis proposal, which consisted primarily Tuesday night of members of the beachfront property owners association and Robert M. Ryan, a New Orleans lawyer whose mother owns the property adjacent to Wallis, made charges that the venture was purely for financial gain on the part of Wallis and would invite others to exploit the "quiet loveliness" of the town at the expense of those who owned property there.

Wallis, who expressed amazement at the amount of controversy created, and Gerald Gex, attorney for Wallis, stated their intent was not to do anything that would substantially change the character of the neighborhood or cause embarrassment and dollar loss to residents in the area.

Rather, Wallis said, he felt the condominium design would be a step toward upgrading the general area.

the neighborhood as well as providing the city coffers with the tax revenue of 25 additional families.

Proponents of the Wallis proposal echoed the same sentiments.

Speaking on behalf of the Waveland Civic Association and "for himself" Waveland contractor Terry Feeney said the 163 member body unanimously endorsed the rezoning of the property and urged the mayor and aldermen to follow suit.

"This city has taken on a $3.5 million sewage treatment system. What did we do it for?" Feeney asked. "Not for the beachfront people. They don't need it. We did it for the future growth of Waveland."

Feeney drew a round of applause from proponents of the rezoning when he offered to purchase any piece of beachfront property "tomorrow" for what it was appraised at on the city tax rolls.

"The beaches in Waveland, like the beaches in Fort Walton or Destin, Fla. are not reserved exclusively for those who bought property there years ago," Feeney said. "Other individuals speaking for the proposal cited the need of the city for more housing, jobs and a tax base."

The longest argument against the rezoning was put forth by Ryan who stated that the proposal was little more than "spot zoning of the worst kind."

"Condominiums is the Florida word for motels," Ryan said, adding there was really no reason to take this particular piece of property and rezone it.

Ryan charged that the condominiums would only serve to attract the type of people that have no investment, no ties, and no thought for the traditions of Waveland.

"If this thing goes," Ryan said, "we will have no choice but to build our own motels called 'condominiums'."

McDonald named to replace Dr. Levens

David McDonald, a Bay St. Louis businessman, was named to succeed Dr. John Levens as a member of the Port and Harbor Commission, by action of the county board of supervisors at a June 17 meeting.

The week before, in his letter of resignation from the seven-man commission, Levens cited an increasing medical practice load as his primary reason for leaving the commission. He said, "Since there are only two doctors in the county I feel my first duty is right here (his medical practice)". Heavy professional demands made it almost impossible to devote the necessary time to both his practice and the commission, he said.

Levens was elected president of the commission at the time of his appointment in January 1972 and has remained in that position since.

Although his letter mentioned nothing more than his practice as his reason for leaving, Levens had resigned from the commission October 11, 1973 during a period of stress over appointment of a new director for the Port and Harbor.

At that time Levens' and other commissioners' attempts to bring in a qualified, experienced person to serve as head of the multi-million dollar port development were blocked by the supervisors and certain of the commissioners. On other occasions he had experienced undue pressure in policy decisions and other port development matters.

Denying that political pressures had influenced his decision to resign, Levens said that he had the greatest respect for every member of the commission and the county board. "As far as I'm concerned, there are no political factions," he stated.

The commission and the board of supervisors agreed to write a joint letter to Levens expressing their regret at his leaving and their appreciation for his service to the Port and Harbor and the county.

McDonald's appointment came from supervisor James Travira and was accepted unanimously by the board.

Commissioner J. D. McCullough will serve as acting president until an election of officers at the next commission meeting in July.

Other officers elected include Steve Kohl - internal vice president; Ira Bradley - external vice president; Charles T. "Butch" Dyer - community involvement vice president; secretary - J. D. Necaise. The board of directors elected includes: Steve Saucier, Rick Leyser, and Otis Gates.

Rosella, 28, resides at 313 E. Beach in Pass Christian. He received his Bachelor degree from the University of Mississippi and has done further work at Arizona State University and Delta State College. He is the immediate past president of the Pass Christian Education Association and is the incoming local MEA president. He is also on the steering committee of the Gulf Coast Mental Health Center in Gulfport.

LERROY J. SWANIER

Marine Second Lieutenant Leroy J. Swanier, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph L. Swanier of 325 Fleitas Ave., Pass Christian, Miss., was commissioned upon graduating from Officer Candidates School at the Marine Corps Development and Education Command, Quantico, Va. During the ten-week course, he received classroom instruction in basic military subjects, and took part in field training exercises to develop leadership traits.

Dragging the line

Work is just about completed on the dredging of the Pass Christian harbor and workmen are filling in the pools of water. Pass Christian Mayor Steve Saucier said that all the sand that's been piled up on the beach is only spoils gathered from the dredging. The sand level will return to normal and work should be completed within 30 days.

Youth charged with attempted kidnapping

by Bob Innes

The 17-year-old Gulfport youth arrested and charged with four counts of pointing and aiming a firearm last week has been additionally charged with attempted kidnapping, says Harrison County Sheriff Howard L. Hobbs.

Sheriff Hobbs told the Echo that there will probably be three counts and that at press time a hearing was set up to "try and certify the juvenile."

"We have 18 witnesses against the boy and we searched some wooded areas in the Long Beach-Pass Christian area in hopes of finding Mary Ann Favre," Miss Favre was abducted from Bay St. Louis months ago and local authorities think the juvenile could be the man they want.

Hancock County Sheriff Sylvan Ladner explained that two males and three females told him they saw a young black man fitting the description of the suspect.

standing next to an automobile not far from where Miss Favre was taken.

The Hancock County sheriff stated that he is waiting for pictures of the black youth to show to these witnesses in hopes of positive identification.

The youth was arrested last week on the charge of pointing and aiming the firearm and by using the gun he tried to force three females into his car.

Sheriff Ladner said that the FBI's involvement so far has yet to produce any significant or substantial evidence.

Food service company gets school contract

by Bob Innes

A slim 3-2 margin gave the ARA Food Services Company of Philadelphia, Pa. the go ahead in preparing school lunches in Long Beach School District's five schools next year in a vote of the school board at a June 18 meeting.

The food service, southern based in Atlanta will replace the present system of a cafeteria manager.

The tie breaker was decided by O. K. Lion, president who voted in favor of the service. However, two board members voiced arguments against the service.

The service proposes that it will prepare 451,000 lunches at an increase of five cents over the present 40 and 45 cent student lunches.

Estimated yearly profit for the service is $20,000, and board member Wesley Watts noted the cafeteria fund had a balance of $7,000. Watts said he couldn't see how the service could bypass enough barriers to gain its estimate.

Watts further explained that he saw no possible way the service could help the system. The second vote against the service was by Mrs. Georgia Pepper, newest trustee on the board. Mrs. Pepper commented that if the service is charging that much money, it means "either we're doing something wrong or they're doing something different."

Watts also said that present personnel could lose their jobs when ARA begins operation. ARA representative John Blanton told the board at a March meeting that all school employees would be considered on a "fair trial basis."

Consideration of the PUPPIES NEED HOMES Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc., has puppies of various breeds and several grown dogs needing homes. Adoption day at the Waveland shelter, Spruce Street, is Saturday from 4 to 5 p.m. proposal came after the announced retirement of Mrs. Gladys Johnson, cafeteria supervisor.

Other action saw the board approve contract with the State Vocational Education Division for equipment for the Distributive Education class.

A resolution was unanimously passed requesting permission from the city council to borrow $18,000 for the purchase of two new school buses.

Superintendent Reeves advised the board that he would like to receive bids on July 8, for supplies and equipment, gasoline, oil, roof repairs, sale of bus and bush hog, relocation of portable classrooms and requested permission to advertise for bids. The trustees unanimously approved the motion.

The board also: -Accepted the low bid of $440 for a bushhog from L&L Lawn and Garden equipment, Gulfport.

-Approved the summer school budget of $6,085 and -Accepted four teacher recommendations: Paul Hogue, junior high science and basketball coach; Joe L. Johnson, distributive education; Mrs. Sharon Kay Braun, junior high science; and Mrs. Jane B. Kramer, fourth grade, Jeff Davis Elementary.

Red Cross asking for membership funds

Bay St. Louis Mayor Warren Carver, Hancock County chairman for the American Red Cross, has asked local residents to contribute to the current Red Cross Drive for additional funds.

Assistance to Mississippi communities ravaged by a series of tornado and flood disasters in recent months has seriously depleted Red Cross funds, Mayor Carver advises. Consequently, the Red Cross is asking for a quota for Hancock County of 1,700 members at $1 each.

The mayor reminds county residents of many thousands of dollars in disaster relief funds that were given to Hancock County by the Red Cross following hurricane Camille and urges citizens to respond to the current appeal. Those wishing to join may clip out the form below and mail in to the listed Red Cross address.

Parents ask for learning disability class

by Bob Innes

In its regular session the Board of Trustees of the Pass Christian Municipal Separate School district voted to react to a petition presented to the board bearing five signatures of school district parents of children with learning disabilities.

The parents are requesting that a learning disabilities class be established in the school district. The action by the board came after conferring with board attorney Jason Floyd. They voted to direct the superintendent to contact the State Department of Education and proceed as directed by house bill 74.

In other action the board directed school architect John Mykolyk to confer with Georg P. Hopkins, general contractor on the DeLisle project and transmit the board's desire to have the "punch list" on the project completed.

Mykolyk was directed to prepare final plans and specifications for a school sign to be erected on the Pass Christian elementary site.

The trustees voted to take under advisement for further consideration a request by the West Harrison County Jaycees to lease a section of 16-section land for recreational purposes.

Mrs. Virginia Pavolini was approved as cafeteria supervisor for the school district for the 1974-75 school year. Bids for school equipment and supplies were also approved by the board.

Resignations of Mrs. Sondra Preston, Miss Barbara Beall and Mrs. Jeanette Reinke were accepted. Those teachers elected by the board are Miss Brenda Gee, Miss Cathy Sarris, Mrs. Kaye Rendfrey, Mrs. Emilie Papizan and Mrs. Patricia Wilcox.

Bills, invoices, payrolls, claim dockets and financial reports were approved.

In final action the board approved: —The payment of insurance premiums on the tractor.

—The installation of an air conditioner in the Home Economics room at the high school. The F.H.A. raised the money to purchase and install the unit.

—Drug abuse specialist Mrs. Sheila Russell to attend a drug education workshop at Mississippi State University June 24-28.

—The payment of salaries for summer school teachers. —The board acknowledged the receipt of a $180 gift from the senior class. The gift was given in memory of Gerald Frisby. Young Frisby was killed in a train accident prior to graduation. The fund is to be used to start a drive towards air conditioning the auditorium or cafeteria at the high school.

After August 1 - no ambulance service

To speculate on whether or not Hancock County faces an ambulance crisis may seem a little premature to some people. From the response, or lack of response, to solicitations by Mobile Medic Ambulance Service for memberships to its privately operated service, one would think that there was no crisis.

The facts as they remain though are first that area funeral homes have announced that they will no longer be able to offer ambulance service to the public in West Harrison or Hancock Counties after Aug. 1 and secondly that at present there is no substitute that could be readily enacted in lieu of the Mobile Medic proposal.

Why then aren't people alarmed?

In endorsing the Mobile Medic proposal, the West Harrison-Hancock County Emergency Medical Service Committee calls it the most feasible plan in terms of service and cost.

Dr. Magruder S. Corban, chairman of the nine member panel of medical, government and business leaders, stated he feels the concept offers a "unique opportunity to provide a high standard of emergency medical service."

What is the Catch-22 then? Simple, in order to make a service of the caliber of the Mobile Medic plan work, or even feasible, a substantial membership base is required. In this case Mobile Medic estimates that 15,000 subscribers are needed to defray first year operating expenses. At the end of the week only one-fifteenth of that number has been obtained.

The $225,000 that the company needs in guaranteed first year revenue does not represent profit for the owners of the service. It simply goes toward the purchase of five fully equipped modular ambulances and for the salaries of the professionally trained para-medics that would staff them. The principals of the firm freely admit that they will probably operate at a loss for the first year and hope to make a profit eventually on non-member service.

The alternatives to the Mobile Medic proposal of privately operated ambulance service are either a semi-private service with supplemental funding by local government subsidies, or a complete publically operated and financed service. In terms of dollars the latter two alternatives are estimated to be more expensive to the taxpayer without offering any higher degree of service.

What the taxpayer can or can't afford in dollars is lost on the simple fact, though, that what the county, any county, can't afford is to be without a vital public service to its citizens.

Foot in mouth award

Although it may not seem so, we do believe in giving credit where credit is due. When a person has consistently excelled in a particular area, we feel he should be recognized.

Therefore, we are nominating the director of the Hancock County Port and Harbor for the supreme foot in mouth award. He rarely misses an opportunity for inserting his foot in his mouth, at all quarters and without discrimination to a person's station. He has managed at one time or another to irritate and alienate just about every member of the press corps in Hancock County, which these days numbers five, each of whom represents a bona fide news publication.

He has indicated that in his opinion the press is remiss in developing unrecurrents of the local political scene, especially as it affects the county's economic balance and yet, is generally negative toward reporters' attempts to obtain information of Port and Harbor business matters. He has several times refused to allow a reporter to listen to tapes of open commission meetings and has prevaricated more than once when pressed.

He has also accused the local commercial fishermen of being uncooperative and incurred their wrath by saying "they seem to be badly organized."

When discussing commission matters at board of supervisors' meetings, he doesn't stand up too well under questioning, and has been known to vacillate to the point of absurdity under public and official scrutiny. The gentleman's main problem seems to be that he is not equipped for a battle of wits, which in his present position, is a constant occupational hazard.

Probably his finest moment came at the Chamber of Commerce banquet last week when he really earned the foot in mouth award with no less than the governor. It was apparent that the director didn't mean what he said the way it sounded, and he did try to recoup. However, it left the assemblage embarrassed, and the director with his foot in his mouth, again.

COMING BACK FOR '75

Washington Report

By: Rep. Trent Lott

DOES ANYONE KNOW WHERE THE VICE PRESIDENT LIVES?

Vice President Gerald Ford is only a heart-beat away from the Presidency, but there aren't more than a handful of bureaucrats who can tell you where he lives.

Our Readers Write

Dear Sir or Madam:

The people who live in ancient homes along the beach have my deepest sympathy. Worse than Camille or Betsy or typhoons is the avaricious Council and its tax returns or the unfortunate Mayor Carver, who couldn't be a good mayor if he wanted to due to his fiery council. Their homes are doomed unless they take heed, take counsel and rally round the flag, boys.

Why go to the legal loophole technicians, of whom the city can hire far more than they could? Simply go to a subtler means: i.e. put their water, gas, etc. "tribute" in deep six, don't misunderstand me, -- very, very legal deep six, holding it back until this contraband is untangled, in the care of a legal eagle of exemplary character if such a one can be found. And refusing to pay any further taxes until the status of their property can be settled. As one who's property could be threatened, I would be inclined to join in such actions.

The Council of Bay St. Louis is being churlish and obtuse in insisting on setting up an embro Biloxi strip where they have decided there are no people strong enough to fight them. They are overlooking, for instance, a useful section on either side of Marquez's lounge, with nothing but commercial property facing it, and plenty of deep water to play with and pollute with boat refuse.

If this crude scheme to gain ugly commercial places to further the drug taking and marihuana smoking element that now makes the Beach a place of horror at night and will drag down the last bastion of decent living which Bay St. Louis has, succeeds then let us all take warning. Remember the ancient Saxons who destroyed their homes, fields and loved possessions rather than give them over to the Vandals.

Yours Very Truly,
Virginia Garth
Bay St. Louis, Miss.

It's not that they don't care. It's just that not many people know.

Vice President Ford, you see, lives in a private home in a quiet Virginia suburb. All Vice Presidents, in fact, have lived in private homes. There is no White House for Vice Presidents.

But that's well and good, you say. At least the public isn't burdened with maintaining another White House.

I've got news for you, my friend. You're footing a tremendous bill on each Vice President's home.

Vice Presidents -- simply because they are a mere heart-beat away from the Presidency -- are subjected to rigid security precautions. Alterations and security requirements are added to each Vice President's home -- at public expense.

The homes must undergo these alterations to meet the Secret Service requirements for security. These alterations include such things as installation of a special communications network, bullet-proof glass, and other equipment to afford the Vice President maximum protection.

This process, repeated each time a new Vice President takes office, is costly to the taxpayers. In fact the average cost in recent years has been around $117,600.

And when you consider that we have had three Vice Presidents during the past six years -- and will have another in less than three years -- you can see the dollar signs adding up.

That's why the House of Representatives and the Senate have passed similar measures calling for designation of a temporary official residence for the Vice President until a permanent residence is ultimately built.

The latest action on the measure came on June 12, when the House accepted a watered-down version of the Senate bill, S. J. Res. 202. The measure is now slated for conference, where major differences must be ironed out.

Basically, the bill provides that the Washington residence of the Chief of Naval Operations be made the temporary official residence of the Vice President. There would be no costs for purchasing and the necessary improvements should not be too costly.

The legislation includes the home, furnishings and related residential facilities which are located on the grounds of the government-owned Naval Observatory in the District of Columbia along what is known as "Embassy Row." Designed in the French Provincial influence, the five bedroom Admiral's House was constructed in 1893 and has been used as the official residence of this chief of Naval Operations for 45 years.

Congress, in 1968, enacted a law authorizing the General Services Administration to construct a permanent residence for the Vice President. An appropriation for this purpose, however, has never been requested by the Executive branch.

A permanent residence would take approximately two years to build and would cost an estimated $1.8 million. That sounds steep, and that's probably why the residence of the Chief of Naval Operations is being obtained.

As I indicated when I voted for S.J. Res. 202, I think it is time we stopped duplicating these security costs. It's time we provide our Vice Presidents with an official residence.

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

Have you noticed lately in these most difficult political times how our elected representatives are paying stricter attention to the mood of the electors? Even the most experienced senator or representative must know how the people feel so that he can vote the right way -- "right" being the way that will keep him in office for another term! And the inexperienced ones are keeping their ears to the ground so closely that blasting may be necessary on election day.

A charming Spanish dancer recently seen on television, recited a poem about God creating the world; when something He had done pleased Him He would say "That's goo-ood!" And that's how we feel about the politicians' dilemma: "That's fi-ine!" because for the first time since the Hoover-Roosevelt election the people are calling the shots and the politicians are saying "Yes, sir" and "As you wish, madam."

For the past thirty years our reps have played King of the Mountain. And then came Watergate and all its messy by-products, and the voters suddenly woke to the fact that their reps in Washington were less than perfect and needed a good spanking. So all the members of Congress have donned their halos and government by and for the people has taken on new meaning.

ROTATIONAL GRAZING

Rotational grazing, or moving livestock from one pasture to another as it is grazed down, has both advantages and disadvantages. The advantages far outweigh the disadvantages.

On the plus side are these factors. You can graze more cattle on a farm. You can control the grazing pressure. You can make the animals eat all the forage on closely grazed pastures. Surplus grazing can be more easily cut for hay.

Among the disadvantages are the need for more fences, additional water and more labor.

For best results with rotational grazing, cross fence areas small enough to concentrate three to five cows per acre on the area being grazed. How often to move the cattle depends upon management but will average 7 to 14 days.

It is a good idea to clip and run a harrow to scatter manure piles after moving cattle.

SOYBEAN WEED CONTROL

Most soybean growers are going to need to apply herbicides after soybeans emerge for control of broadleaf weeds, regardless of preemergence treatment. The first month after planting will be the most critical time. This is when many farmers fall too far behind to catch up.

Here are some suggestions. Three to five days after planting apply dinoseb if weeds are emerging with the beans. Do not apply after the crop is up to a stand and unfolds leaves. Do not apply on wet soil.

On five to six inch beans apply the first directed spray of dinoseb plus surfactant. Use tenoran or norex plus non-phytotoxic oil for sicklepod.

On 8 inch or taller beans, repeat dinoseb or apply lorox plus surfactant or 2,4-DB or paraquat depending on the type of weeds.

This type of program will work but it requires good management and good equipment.

FORESTRY INCENTIVES PROGRAM

To be eligible for cost sharing in the forestry incentive program a landowner must own a tract of not more than 500 acres of forestland. He must have land that is suitable for forestation if not presently in trees, for reforestation or for improved forest management.

He must have land that is capable of producing industrial wood crops and meets established minimum productivity standards.

He also must have had no commercial harvest on the land within the past five years. Salvage cutting, cuttings to regenerate unproductive stands and cuttings to convert unproductive species are not considered commercial harvests. For more information on this program, contact the county ASCS office and the county forester.

By-elections in several States already have shown what can happen to the "old-time" politician, and a desperate struggle is now going on to prove that there is now nobody in the coop but us chickens.

It takes an explosion like Watergate and its aftermath to blast out the incompetents and cheaters who have made our Congress a shoddy excuse for a governing body. The same situation was present back in the '20's after President Harding and the Teapot Dome affair, and we are sure our present Congressmen don't like to think about what happened in the following years until '32. With a few exceptions, there isn't a member of the Congress today who isn't "expedient" in the coming elections and the voters are giving many indications that they would like to see plenty of changes.

All this is too bad, really. It weakens us as a nation. It uses up material and effort which might be much better devoted to constructive activities. Repair work, whether it is on our roofs or our legislatures, is always make-up work, unconstructive and wasteful. But when you get into a jam, you either do the repair work or you let the whole business go to pot. We look forward to a very interesting election two years from now, with many graven images upset off their pedestals.

Hancock farmer Karl Goss:

Dairying is hard work but good life

Karl Goss-reeched up and pulled a chain one late May afternoon and a door swung open. Six hungry registered Holstein dairy cows lumbered into his gleaming, spotless dairy barn and immediately plunged their heads into the feed troughs.

Goss's son, Barry, repeated the procedure and the same thing happened on the other side of the double-six herringbone milking parlor located in the Caesar community in Hancock County. Twelve dairy cows, each weighing about 1,400 pounds, were now ready to be milked.

No sooner were the cows in the barn when another son, Grayson, picked up a water hose and began washing the cows' udders and legs. When cows are clean and sanitized, milking machines are attached. To the rhythm of the surging machines, clean, sanitary milk began to flow through the pipeline to the stainless steel holding tank in the milk room. After milking, udders are sprayed with a disinfectant.

When these cows were finished milking, they were let out and 12 others took their place in the parlor. Goss and his sons repeated the routines until they had milked about 45 cows that hot afternoon. After finishing, the dairymen cleaned up the barn, barnyards and all milking equipment in preparation for milking the next morning.

"I've repeated these procedures about 19,000 times during the 26 years I've been in the dairy business," said Goss. "Dairying is a good life, but it's a hard life."

Good management and close attention to details are a trademark on this farm. Goss and his sons know each cow by name and can quickly describe the ancestry of each. "You have to know your cows -- their good and weak points," said Goss. "We breed all our cows artificially and select semen from the bulls that help offset the weakness of the individual cow we're breeding," he explained.

"The Goss herd is one of the finest in the state," said Gerald Taylor, dairy specialist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "The Gosses have been repeat winners of the Master Dairyman Award, and their herd was selected as one of the top herds in the state in 1964."

The Goss herd is averaging 13,106 pounds of milk and 462 pounds of butterfat per cow according to Pearl River County Agent Roy Fowler, who supervises the Dairy Herd Improvement Association testing. Droughts the past few years seriously limited quality feed production and lowered the average production of the herd.

"We will try to improve our feed production so we can increase our average production. We also plan to expand our herd size to about 70 head when we can produce enough feed for them," Goss explained.

Corn silage fed year-round is the heart of the feed program on this farm. The Gosses try to fill their trench self-feeding silo with about 2,000 tons of silage each year. Silage is supplemented with millet in the summer and winter grazing, primarily ryegrass, during the winter.

Center of the evening and morning milking activities is a new, modern milking parlor that's equipped with automatic feeders and the latest in milking equipment.

"The milk produced in today's modern dairy is more sanitary than the water supply the average family uses," stressed Taylor. "Dairymen must have healthy cows and sanitary equipment and buildings. Dairy operations are checked regularly by county and state health inspectors to insure a top quality product when it leaves the farm," the dairy specialist emphasized.

From a business standpoint, Hancock County Agent John Smith thinks the economics of dairy farming will improve. He noted that for milk producers to survive they must get a higher price for the milk they sell.

Smith's view brought quick agreement from Goss and Taylor. Goss said the prices that producers are paying for production items are going up much faster than the rise in the price of milk they sell.

"For instance, prices of some feed ingredients and wire have more than doubled in the past two years," Goss said. "The price of diesel fuel has doubled from last year, fertilizer has gone up 50 percent in the last eight months, and some herbicide costs have doubled since last year."

Taylor noted that dairymen received only about $9 per hundredweight for their milk. "We hear many consumer complaints about the cost of milk, but most people don't understand where their milk dollar goes. The average dairymen nets only about 5 cents for each half gallon of milk. By comparison, the average retailer will make about 20 cents on each half gallon of milk that he sells."

The investment of today's dairy farmer represents quite a chunk of money, added Taylor. On the average, grade A dairy farmers have about $2,400 per cow invested in the entire operation. "So for every four dairy farms, we're talking about a $1 million industry," the dairy expert stated.

"But of equal importance, the average consumer doesn't appreciate the high standard of quality of milk," he added. "Restrictions on production and handling of milk are tighter than on many other food products we use."

Statewide, the cost-price squeeze has forced many dairymen out of business in recent years. Milk cow numbers declined eight percent in 1973, and is 53 percent less than 10 years ago. The decline in production from fewer cows was partially offset by higher production from the remaining cows.

Total grade A milk production in Mississippi dropped only three percent from a year ago, but is 16 percent greater than that of 10 years ago.

Total grade A milk production was 855 million pounds in 1973. Farm value of milk produced last year was almost $75 million.

Jehovah's Witnesses to convene

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society has revealed plans for 85 district conventions of Jehovah's Witnesses in the United States and Canada in 1974.

Dee Jackson, presiding minister of the Bay St. Louis congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses, said there will be 74 assemblies for English-speaking delegates and eleven meetings in Spanish, French and Italian.

Jackson said approximately 70 delegates will represent the Bay St. Louis congregation at the convention scheduled for Mobile, Alabama, June 27 through 30.

He added that 8,500 delegates are expected to attend the Mobile convention set for the Municipal Auditorium.

"Hundreds of thousands of persons are looking forward with eager anticipation to the series of 'Divine Purpose' District Assemblies of Jehovah's Witnesses this summer," Jackson said.

"The combined attendance is expected to reach nearly one-million persons this year. Young and old, family groups and even the infirm will be there," he said.

The highlight of the convention program will be the public discourse on the subject "Human Plans Failing as God's Purpose Succeeds."

A baptism service will also be featured. Last year, 55,775 were baptized in the United States as Jehovah's Witnesses. This represents 10 percent of the total U.S. membership in only one year.

"In fact," he said, "they registered a five percent increase during the last twelve months and 11,324 persons were baptized in these countries."

Jackson said there are now 31,850 congregations of Jehovah's Witnesses around the world.

"At a time when church attendance is declining and clergymen express concern about a lack of interest in religion, Jehovah's Witnesses are expanding as never before," Jackson said.

In explaining his reasons why the growth is taking place, Jackson said the Witnesses' adherence to Bible principles on such things as morals, conduct and behavior set them apart from many religions in a time of change in 'life style' and moral attitudes.

"We believe in imitating Jesus Christ and his life style and practicing religion based firmly on God's Word," Jackson concluded.

Drugs and your health

by John F. Russell, M.D.

DOWNERS: sleeping pills, sedatives, barbiturates (yellow birds, reds, blues, rainbows), methaqualones (quales, soapers), call them what you will. These are the most dangerous of the drugs being abused today. An overdose may lead to death, a small amount combined with alcohol may lead to death, and abrupt withdrawal from as little as 400 milligrams per day may lead to death. Unfortunately, more and more people are abusing these drugs without realizing that they are flirting with death.

Why are these downers so hazardous when abused? Sleeping pills belong to a group of drugs known as depressants. They slow down the body and mind, let them relax and rest. Because of these actions, they are extremely important in the field of medicine. They are used as relaxants before and during surgery, they are used as sedatives in both mental and physical illnesses, and they are used by physicians in the treatment of insomnia (inability to sleep) and epilepsy. A highly excitable person is calmed by them; the convulsive seizures of an epileptic are controlled by them; and when rest is vital for the body and mind, they bring sedation and sleep. These depressants, therefore, are very important and necessary when prescribed by a physician. When used as directed, they are life-saving. Paradoxically, when abused these same life-saving drugs are deadly. Barbiturates are the LEADING cause of accidental death by poisoning in the United States, and the single most frequently used class of drugs for suicide. It's use in suicide is obvious. Just go to sleep forever. The accidental suicide is less understandable until one remembers that everything in the body slows down, including the brain, when sedatives are taken. The individual may not give the sleeping pill time to take effect and think that he needs another one. More often, he may forget that he already took a sedative and take another and another and another. When one loses count, it's easy to overdose. Probably the greatest hazard of all is the combination of sedatives and alcohol which is also a depressant. Too often an individual has gone to a party, consumed copious amounts of alcohol, had trouble going to sleep and reached for barbiturates. The next morning the headlines would read, "DEATH BY OVERDOSE." This reaction is known as synergism, when one plus one does not equal two, but a much greater quantity such as six or eight. Alcohol mixed with any drug can be dangerous, but with sleeping pills, it can be deadly. Another extremely important factor which most people are not aware of is that withdrawal from downers is worse than from heroin. When an addict stops taking heroin, he goes through some painful and difficult times and may wish he were dead, but he doesn't die. If he is addicted to downers, on the other hand, he has a good chance of a convulsive seizure, coma, and death.

Sadly, more and more young adults are abusing downers, not aware of these dangers. Even sadder is the fact that barbiturates are second only to alcohol in abuse by adults. Harried housewives and high-tension businessmen are turning more and more to sedatives in order to cope with the everyday problems of living. Somehow, with a legal prescription, they do not compare themselves to the kid on the street who is "doing downers", even when they are taking three times the prescribed dosage. We recently had to detox (slowly withdraw) a woman who was taking over 300 sedatives a week, all obtained legally by prescriptions from different doctors.

Perhaps this explains why over 300 tons of barbiturates alone are produced every year. This is the equivalent of over ten billion doses. This does not even include the methaqualones and "hypnotics" which, it is being learned, are equally as dangerous. It is a sad, sick world that needs that much sedation.

Lets heed the warning now, before it is too late. Taken as prescribed by a physician, downers are a boon to humanity; abused, they are death.

Tips given for air conditioning use

Mississippi Power Company Manager Perry Gibson said today that homeowners in Bay St. Louis are turning to the comfort of electric air conditioning as summer temperatures climb and that this increased use of electricity will be reflected in the consumer's monthly utility bill. To help save money and make the wisest use of electric service, Gibson suggests that homeowners set the air conditioning thermostat at the highest comfortable temperature—usually about 78 degrees. For each degree below 78, the air conditioning unit will use about 10 percent more electricity.

He also emphasized that homeowners should clean or change air conditioning filters at least once a month. A dirty filter restricts the flow of air and increases operating costs. Furthermore, clogged filters make air conditioning units work harder and may lead to serious and expensive repairs. Here are other suggestions which consumers may consider to help get the most efficient use of air conditioning this summer:

—Check to see that the house is insulated properly. The recommended thickness for insulation is six inches in the ceiling and four inches in the wall.

—The attic should be properly ventilated, even with a well-insulated ceiling.

—Awnings or shutters outside the house and closed draperies or blinds inside will shut out the heat.

—If you plan to build or re-roof, keep in mind that a light-colored roof reflects heat.

—Shade trees and shrubbery also keep out heat, but make sure they don't block the cooling unit's air flow.

—Windows and doors should be properly fitted and weather stripped. Ask members of the household to close doors properly so that cool air will not escape.

WASHINGTON -- Senator James O. Eastland has called on Secretary of Transportation Claude Brinegar to approve a passenger-railroad route along the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

In a letter to Brinegar, Eastland asked that AMTRAK establish passenger rail service between Jacksonville, Florida, and New Orleans.

There are 5 million persons who live along this rail corridor between New Orleans and Jacksonville," said Sen. Eastland.

"There are no significant airline routes within the area and consequently, these people are left to their own resources when it comes to travelling."

"Many persons along the Gulf Coast are faced with a critical need for some type of rail service. With the energy situation we are facing, Mississippians must be offered some alternate type of long distance and commuter transportation. This rail service could benefit the Coast's tourist industry by providing a means for people to visit Mississippi without driving their automobiles."

Eastland said the addition of this segment of the AMTRAK network would mean coast-to-coast passenger service. "We now have passenger service to the Pacific coast from New Orleans. The opening of this route will allow travel from Florida to California by train. With stops in Mississippi, this coast-to-coast service would provide a new avenue for tourists into Mississippi."

Sen. Eastland was joined in the letter to Brinegar by Sen. John Stennis and the Senators from Alabama, Florida, Louisiana, Georgia and Texas.

The AMTRAK route will be part of an experimental project to develop a feasible railway system in the United States. The route from Jacksonville to New Orleans will utilize track owned by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad and the Seaboard Coast Line.

According to Sen. Eastland, the passenger train would have three stops in Mississippi. "Pascagoula, Biloxi and Gulfport would each be served by this route," Eastland said. "Renovation of station facilities at the three Mississippi stops will provide passengers with efficient and convenient rail service."

A youthful Buccaneer Captain, Douglas Adams, and his Lady, Lenore Kelley, compete with eye patches, stand sedately for the photographer after winning first place awards in the costume contest, held as a segment of the recent ground breaking ceremonies for Buccaneer State Park in Waveland.

Buccaneer Park costume contest winners are announced

Winners of the Captain and Lady Buccaneer costume contest, held as part of the Buccaneer State Park groundbreaking ceremonies June 18 have been announced by Mrs. Gerald Klein, contest chairman and president of the Ladies Auxiliary of the Waveland American Legion, Post 77, sponsoring organization.

A total of 28 children from the Bay-Waveland area entered the contest, which was open to all boys and girls under the age of 15. Cash prizes for first, second and third place winners were donated through the courtesy of Garland Belote, State Farm Insurance, E. J. Marengo, Coastal Insurance Agency and Delmar Wilcox, Wilcox Electric Co., Inc. Cash prizes and ribbons for runners-up in both girls and boys categories were donated by the members of the Ladies Auxiliary.

Judges were Auxiliary members Mrs. Urban Stork, Connie Riols and Chester Curvey. Judging was based on the most originality in costume concept.

First place winners received $25, second place winners received $15 and third place $10. First, second and third runners-up won $5, $2, and $1 respectively.

First, second and third place winners in the Captain Buccaneer division were Douglas Adams, Waveland; Craig Beland, Bay St. Louis; Alfred Serio, Waveland. Runners-up were Andrew Ruhr, Donnie Dwyer and Tommy Holzhauser, all of Waveland.

In the Lady Buccaneer division, winners included Lenore Kelley, Terri Holzhauser and Lianne Adams, all of Waveland. Runners-up were Caytee Carter, Waveland; Valerie Latham, Bay St. Louis; Karen Waltman, Waveland.

Perry Gibson, State Park Commissioner in Bay St. Louis who headed the ground breaking ceremonies, has announced that all children who entered the costume contest will be guests of the park commission at a picnic and swimming party early next summer as soon as the initial camping and recreation facilities are completed. A large wave pool, unique in the south, will be the focal point of the special children's party, Gibson said.

Endris attends education conference in Miami

State Representative Glenn Endris of Harrison County recently attended a day-long conference in Miami on ways to improve educational services for handicapped children.

The conference, attended by nearly 100 state legislators from 15 states, was sponsored by the Handicapped Children's Education Project of the Denver-based Education Commission of the States (ECS).

Conference participants learned what a number of states have done in recent years to improve educational services for handicapped children, how different states fund special education programs and what the federal government is doing to help the states in educating the handicapped.

Speakers at the conference included Edwin W. Martin, associate commissioner for the handicapped, U.S. Office of Education.

Gene Hensley, director of the ECS handicapped children's project, noted that educating handicapped children is the No. 1 education goal of the nation's governors, according to a recent ECS poll.

He told conference participants that while state governments have made great progress in recent years, about half of the nation's estimated seven million handicapped children still do not receive special education services.

People once believed that one's blood could actually turn cold while still in the veins!

Corps to collect additional campground fees

The Army Corps of Engineers will begin collecting fees at additional overnight campgrounds by mid-July as required by a new law signed by the President on June 7.

Nationwide the Corps is currently collecting fees at 158 campgrounds under previous legislation.

The new law amending the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act requires all Federal agencies, including the National Park Service, Forest Service and the Corps of Engineers, to collect fees for family and group camping areas when facilities are provided at Federal expense.

The Corps is in the process of identifying the additional campgrounds throughout the country where fees ranging from $1 to $4 will be collected. Public announcements will be made by the Corps Districts about July 3.

General entrance or admission fees are not collected at any Corps of Engineers' recreation areas. The only use fee, other than for camping, authorized under the new law is for "...boat launching facilities where specialized facilities or services such as mechanical or hydraulic boat lifts or facilities are provided." Unless such lifts or facilities are provided, there will be no charge for boat launching area. Fees are not collected for any day use facilities such as picnic areas.

Fee collection, however, is required at all Federal Campgrounds providing tent or trailer spaces, drinking water, toilet facilities, access roads, refuse containers, fireplaces, visitor protection and other facilities. Fees will be collected personally in the campground area.

Under the new law, the Corps of Engineers is also required to provide at each Corps lake, where fee camping is available, at least one primitive campground free of camping fees. Primitive campgrounds, although not containing all facilities of fee campgrounds, must contain designated campsites, sanitary facilities, and vehicular access roads.

Holders of "Golden Age" Passports will receive a 50 percent reduction on campground fees at all Corps-managed recreation areas.

VFW Auxiliary plans second pillow sale

The Mississippi department, Ladies Auxiliary to the Veterans of Foreign Wars is leading all other auxiliary departments in the nation in the Cancer Aid research program, according to recent statistics.

On the local level, the Ladies Auxiliary of VFW Post 5831 in Pass Christian, had such a successful sale of sofa pillows as a fund raising activity for the program, that they have ordered another 100 pillows for a second sale, the date to be set later.

The Mississippi chapters of VFW auxiliary have named the attractive pillows "Gossett" pillows in honor of Mrs. Odie Lee Gossett, of Monroe, La., national president of VFW Ladies Auxiliaries, who has made cancer research her number one project for the year.

Hancock County Scouts help 'Keep America Beautiful'

Boy Scout Troop 208 in Bay St. Louis reconditioned 50 litter barrels for the city, while Troop 211 of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints beautified the new church grounds.

Cub Pack 208 turned out en masse to collect litter from Bay city streets.

Posters on keeping St. Clare School clean and pulling weeds on school grounds kept Browline Troop 32 busy during the Keep America Beautiful program.

Brownie Troops 420 and 122 turned onto school grounds at Our Lady of the Gulf and North Bay Elementary for a massive clean up project.

Be prepared for life

Did you know that when we asked boys across the country what they thought was most fun about Scouting they said hiking and camping outdoors? But when we asked them what they thought was most important about Scouting, they said "...to help you be prepared for life."

To help you be prepared for life.

Did you know that Scouting has a drug prevention program all its own? That Scouting has one of the most effective anti-pollution programs going? That new Scouting merit badges include Computers, Environmental Science, Atomic Energy, Space Exploration and Citizenship in the World? That more Scout troops are being formed in the nation's inner cities than boys groups of any other kind?

Did you know that for every boy in Scouting there's another boy who'd like to be, but can't? And that the reason most of them can't is because no adult in the neighborhood thinks Scouting's worth the time?

If you don't think Scouting's worth your time, you don't know enough about Scouting. Find out more. Write: Scouting, North Brunswick, New Jersey 08902.

Ticket sales open

UNIVERSITY, Miss. — After July 1, tickets to 1974 Ole Miss football games can be ordered without regard to priorities. Athletic Business Manager John Reed Holley announced Saturday.

Holley advised that tickets are available for all games except the Nov. 2 game with L.S.U. in Baton Rouge, a sellout for the 17th consecutive time.

"We have also sold all of our sideline seat allotment for the Tulane game but have been given an increase in our end zone ticket allotment," Holley stated.

Remaining Ole Miss tickets to the Sept. 7 season-opener with Tulane in New Orleans's Sugar Bowl Stadium will be sold for $4.50.

Priorities for the placing of season ticket orders, covering active 'M' Club Alumni, Loyalty Foundation Contributors, active alumni, inactive alumni and the general public ended May 31.

Priorities for the sale of individual game tickets to the same groups end June 30. Also at an end will be the limit of four tickets per game per order.

Tickets can be purchased to any Rebel game in any number after July 1. Orders will be accepted and filled according to the date received. Mail orders will be accepted until Sept. 1.

Safe boating week starts June 30

"June 30-July 6 has been declared as National Safe Boating Week", according to Water Patrol Officer Joe Seal of the Mississippi Boat and Water Safety Commission. "This week has been set aside to promote safety for boaters and to call attention to the dangers faced on our waterways. Each year over 100 people lose their lives in Mississippi waters needlessly," said Water Patrol Officer Seal.

The main safety points to remember are: (1) carry a personal flotation device for each person on board, (2) make sure that your boat is in good condition and seaworthy,

(3) operate your boat at safe speeds and stay in control at all times, (4) when water skiing, be sure that you have an observer on board, (5) do not overload your boat with people or gear, (6) be courteous to other boaters and (7) watch your wake.

Fishermen, boat enthusiasts advised to file float plans

The best fishermen have no fear of revealing the locations of their private fishing holes. They can catch the limit despite the fiercest competition.

It is the fisherman with only moderate success who needs a monopoly on a hot spot, but this could bring him bad luck if he is the one needing to be caught.

Coast Guard searches, as well as those conducted by other rescue organizations, often cover thousands of square miles of fishing grounds to find one missing boatman who refused - or forgot - to let on where he planned to be. With thousands of inlets, bays and rivers to be searched it is easy to see how the Coast Guard often misses a boat.

Boatmen can take a tip from aircraft pilots and possibly save themselves from turning a day's fishing trip into an overnight ordeal or worse. A pilot files a flight plan before leaving the ground and then closes it out at his destination. This gives the Civil Air Patrol or other search unit a head start on determining if and where an aircraft is missing. The same can work very well for boats, if you do not mind leaking a few personal secrets.

A "Float Plan" is much less formal than the airborne equivalent, but it should supply three basic information topics: locations, times and gear. When you make one for your trip, leave it with your wife or a friend.

List as complete an itinerary as possible. Start with the launch site and the places you intend to fish or cruise. Since fish have been known to be highly uncooperative at times, you may be moving around or may change your route completely. It would be a good idea to list on the plan some alternate routes.

Also, list locations you will head for in case of mechanical trouble or inclement weather. "Missing" boats are often found in a repair shop or the lee of an island, far from where they would normally operate.

Coast Guard searches often end in bars. This is not a reflection on the military man's drinking habits, but rather a good indication of where the last fishing hole is on many a weekend outing. If you plan a special stop before closing out your float plan (and you don't mind letting your wife in on a secret) write down a few of the local pubs you may frequent.

Times can often be linked with locations. Besides the times you depart and return, list a time you plan to be home "no later than." If you miss both deadlines, the float plan holder should seek assistance. Many telephone books list emergency numbers on the inside cover, but write down the appropriate rescue unit's number on the float plan as well, just in case.

List also if you have any food-water rations, the number of life preservers, life vests or buoyant cushions, paddles, anchor, spare engine parts, etc. There is never too much information.

There is a "Catch-22." The Coast Guard is willing to instruct you in making out a float plan and is more than willing to help you out of a jam. But the Coast Guard and most other government agencies for that matter - has neither the facilities nor the personnel to handle float plans for the entire boating public in this country. Leave yours with a responsible friend, neighbor or relative. And be sure to close out the float plan when you return to shore or home. You may consider offering your float plan holder a share of the catch. He'll be sure to know you're home then.

KANTCHA KETCHUM

By L.S. (Deq) Elliott

The weather, tides and winds are unpredictable now-a-days as far as fishing goes. It used to be that tides would run about an hour's difference each day. Now they run crazy, high one day, low the next.

The tides control fishing, both salt and fresh water, crabbing, soft crabbing and floundering. Soft crabs are caught on a falling tide, speckles on a rising tide as well as flounders, plus hard crabs. Bass and perch are caught better on a falling or low tide.

The condition of the water has a lot to do with fishing. Clear water is always best. Whether you know it or not, flounders are being caught in a lot of places, especially off the rock piles just this side of Bayou Caddy. They were caught last week most everyday. To prove this John Schwartz of Waveland last Tuesday caught 23 flounders and 15 speckle trout. He and his fishing partner were fishing from a floating rubber boat. The fish were caught on the shad rig with a small piece of shrimp, which makes a very effective bait if you haven't tried one. The flounders averaged from one and three-fourths to two and a quarter pounds. Donna Funk is Mr. Schwartz's daughter. She is also a good fisherman and catches her share of fish.

The Miss. - La. Theater Owners Assn. held its annual convention in Biloxi last week. Ree Elliott, formerly of Bay St. Louis, now residing in Gulfport, was elected to the position of vice-president in charge of South Mississippi. Ree is an ardent fisherman and goes when he can. He is our grandson. Enough said!

Walter Muller of New Orleans is both a salt water and fresh water fisherman. He does most of his fishing here about. Another old-timer at the game.

A number of our local fishermen have been hospitalized lately. For instance Henry Carver and Jos. Benvenuti. By latest reports they are doing o.k.

Russell Elliott, my son, who is with Diamondhead is a pretty busy man on weekends, but finds time to do a little fishing and golf playing. Russ sells condominiums. He spent many years on the "Eltro" and other boats fishing in outside waters. He knows the marshes like a book.

From a special article to the Times-Picayune at Pascagoula, Miss. We read where the Japanese are considering locating a croaker plant there, according to E. Moret Smith, marketing specialist with the National Marine Fisheries' office here. Smith, who visited Japan and entertained a Japanese delegation here, said a decision on the plant will be made within six months. The croaker, used only for pet food here, would be processed and shipped to Japan for human consumption. The plant also would use other low value fish such as mullet.

Smith said the Japanese consume 70 pounds of fish per capita a year, compared to 12 pounds in the United States.

To show where the Echo and "Kantcha Ketchum" is read we publish the following:

Mr. Elliott, In your 6 June column in Sea Coast Echo you mentioned a "fish cheese". Sounds fantastic - do you think Mrs. Villere would reveal the ingredients so you can share with "Echo readers"? Enjoy reading your column.

Mrs. J. Foglesonger 351 S. Fuller Ave. Los Angeles, Cal.

When the air is humid, rain is more likely at low than high tide. Falling tide reduces atmospheric pressure.

Don't worry about what other fishermen are doing. Use your own judgement. You are as smart as they are. How's that?

Two of the Haggerty boys have bought a brand new boat to do a lot of fishing. They are from New Orleans and want their Granddad to show them good fishing spots on the coast. Will come over often.

Danny, Pat and Timothy Haggerty with their cousin John Baudry made an overnight fishing trip. Caught a mess of speckles and red fish. They are our grandsons.

For frying fish, try this. For tenderloin fish (any kind) dip in Louisiana hot sauce, or other brand, not Tabasco. Roll in Italian bread crumbs. Fry in hot grease. A delicious treat. Not too hot, either, just right. We learn things everyday, regardless of age.

Shrimp seem to be more plentiful. They are nice size and cheaper. Now we can get a good mess of shrimp, boiled, fried or in salad. Know of anything better?

Speaking of fresh shrimp there is no better bait for catching flounders, speckle trout, ground mullets, sheepshead, etc. They are catching all this type of fish off the seawall both down by Bayou Caddy and down Cedar Point way.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam E. Sterling (nee Gloria Biehl) and three children, Tim, Teri Lee and Melanie have been visiting Mrs. Albert Biehl the past week. The Sterlings are from Akron, Ohio. Sam enjoyed some fishing with Roy Webre while here.

SPORTSMAN OF THE WEEK - is Richard Schaefer who is known by a lot of folks as the owner of the boat "Outcast". Richard captured first place honors in the Biloxi Fishing Races June 14-16 for Red Snappers bringing in a 36 lb. 2 ounce beauty. Richard and his fishing partner Randy McIver also brought in 3 lemons fish totaling 324 lbs., a 40 lb. jewfish, six amberjacks, and 250 lbs. of the delectable red snapper. The two were fishing off Southwest Pass.

Audrey, another daughter, also visited with them.

Thanks to Mrs. J. Foglesonger of Los Angeles for the note she wrote about "Fish cheese". If I can get the ingredients they will be forthcoming.

Folks are still going out after soft crabs with little result. Have had calls about catching them and when to go. Go when the tide is low regardless of the time. Some can be caught in the daytime also.

Water accidents claim 63 lives

The Mississippi Water Patrol announced that according to Commission records 63 people have lost their lives in water related accidents so far in 1974.

This figure is a combination of 20 boating fatalities and 43 swimming type accidents. Last year at this time the total of water related fatalities was 64. Leonard Boulter, director of the Mississippi Boat and Water Safety Commission (Water Patrol) stated, "Considering the added increase in the number of new boats in Mississippi we have experienced a small decline in fatalities."

Hopefully the remaining portion of the year which includes the peak boating season will indicate a significant reduction in water type accidents.

The major causes were capsizing, over loading and rough weather. The Water Patrol urges all outdoor enthusiasts when around water to exercise extreme caution and be aware of the dangers present.

Ecology future is topic of water quality workshop

Are we being forced too quick? This is the concern of industry, reported Larry Walters, of Mississippi Chemical Company during the Water Quality Workshop in Biloxi.

"The goal of zero pollution discharge by 1985 is desirable but it is not economically feasible," Walters stated.

"Our company would have to spend 800 million dollars in pollution abatement by 1985 to meet the guidelines. The cost of pollution abatement will be paid by the public in taxes and increased costs of products," Walters added.

John White, Deputy Regional Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency for the southeast region, discussed the goals of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act of 1972. "Our objective is clean water. The 1972 amendments to the Water Quality Control Act includes the objective that our waters be clean enough to be safe for recreation and the production of fish and aquatic life by 1973," White added.

"New permits with specific limits on allowable pollutants are being issued and this lays the foundation for cleaning our waters," White stated.

Mrs. Chris Jacobs of the Sierra Club welcomed those in attendance and gave the objectives of the workshop. They are to inform and train local citizens on the requirements of the Federal and State laws on pollution control and to serve as a catalyst in working toward our objective of clean water on the Gulf Coast.

Representative Gerald

Blessey spoke on "What Are We Protecting—Quality of Life." Blessey pointed out that "We are not protecting the quality of life but the continuation of life. Failure to see our dependence on nature is a moral issue."

He continued, "We need the best minds in industry as well as the environmentalists in our search for a solution. It's a healthy sign when concerned citizens study our problems and seek answers to them."

Ed Keels, manager of the Hilton and past president of the Coast Inn Keepers Association, discussed "Tourism's Interest in Water Quality." Keels stated, "The tourist industry is interested in the quality of our water since our visitors come to the Coast to enjoy the sun, sand, water as well as our facilities."

"Commerce and Industry's Viewpoint" was addressed by Dr. Robert Robinson of the Agricultural and Industrial Board. "Matching industrial needs is a complex problem which must be solved on a case by case basis. To date, we have not lost an industry due to water quality. We need to select industries and locate them to prevent the development of large cities," Dr. Robinson stated.

The Mississippi Marine Resources Council's role is to formulate State policy and plans for Marine resources. The Council also helps coordinate activities of other state agencies involved in Marine work. Dr. James Rucker, Executive Director of this council, said "Mississippi has just received a grant for the development of a Coastal Zone Management Plan. This plan must consider the needs of the various users of our Marine resources. We will establish guidelines and priorities for the use of our Marine resources."

James Carraway, Vice Chairman of the Air and Water Pollution Control Commission, reviewed the organization of the commission and the possible steps available when pollution violations are documented. "Sometimes it is necessary to impose penalties to get corrective action," Carraway said.

"The Commission is also responsible for monitoring and determining when our waters are polluted to unacceptable levels. When we find such an area, our responsibility is to notify the Governor, the Health Department and local governmental officials. You should look to them for corrective action," Carraway added.

Roberts, representing Congressman Trent Lott, reviewed some of the costs of pollution abatement. Roberts pointed out it will cost as much to eliminate the last five per cent of pollution as it does the first ninety-five per cent. "We'll have to pay the cost but consider what we are buying. We're buying the protection of our health, the quality of life we enjoy, the vitality of our waterways, and the future of our fishing industry," Roberts said.

Several others from industry, recreation and government appeared on Tuesday's program. Mr. Gary Holland of the Mississippi Press Register will discuss "What the Public Expects" at the session on Wednesday. This will be followed by workshops on fisheries, tourism-recreation, industry and commerce.
